Instrument Handling Products

Devon™ Hands-Free-Transfer™ Products

"Paragraph (d)(4)(ii)(E) prohibits employers from allowing employees to place their hands into containers whose contents include reusable sharps contaminated with blood or OPIM. For example, employees must not reach into sinks filled with soapy water into which sharp instruments have been placed; appropriate controls in such a circumstance would include the use of strainer type baskets to hold the instruments and forceps to remove the items." OSHA<sup>1</sup>

Safe-T-Strainer

Disposable basin liner eliminates the need to reach by hand into containers filled with potentially contaminated sharps. An optional Flexi-Lid™ is available for transporting filled Safe-T-Strainer outside of the OR. EZ-Grip™ handles provide a secure grip to lift heavy instrument loads.

Magnetic Drapes

Magnetic drapes introduce a safe and effective way to minimize percutaneous injuries and accidental sticks during instrument transfer in the OR.

- Disposable magnetic drapes attract and hold surgical instruments on the sterile field
- Flexible drapes conform to any shape with non-slip foam backing for secure positioning
- Available in a variety of styles and two sizes
- Drapes with patented 'stays' can be shaped to form a 'safety trough' along the edges
- The economical No-Skid Pad holds instruments in place without the use of magnets
- Raised magnets provide strong holding power while allowing instruments to be easily grasped

"It is OSHA's view that preventing exposures (to bloodborne pathogens) requires a comprehensive program, including engineering controls... and proper work practices (e.g., no hands procedures in handling contaminated sharps, eliminating hand-to-hand instrument passing in the operating room)." OSHA<sup>2</sup>
